Today i will show you a powerful software that allow you to download drivers. Arcsoft Webcam Companion 3.0 Serial Key Full Version66.Q: Show Unauthorized Access Exception in Custom Error Page I have Custom error page for that "xxx/PageNotFound.aspx". So that it will redirect to that page, if any unauthorize access exception happened. But I am not getting that page. Below is my web.config files for this error. My issue is that I do not see the exception in my custom error page. So I am not able to see access denied message. A: I know this is an old question, but in the process of googling I found another approach that worked for me To show the unAuthorizedAccessException Exception on the first hit on a page, you can leverage the Request.IsAuthenticated Property on the HttpContext. This works for both on-premise and on-cloud (dynamic) web apps. Like this protected void Application_BeginRequest(object sender, EventArgs e) { if (HttpContext.Current.Request.IsAuthenticated == false) { HttpContext.Current.Response.Clear(); HttpContext.Current.Response.Redirect("/Whatever_the_redirect_page_is.aspx"); Context.Response.StatusCode = 403; Context.Response.Write("You are not authorized to view this page."); Context.Response.End(); } }

The use of fuel cells in power generation has become of increased importance in light of the growing demand for environmentally clean and safe sources of energy. The search continues for alternative fuels, such as hydrogen, for the efficient and economical conversion of the hydrocarbon fuel into electrical energy using ambient atmospheric conditions and the laws of physics. Ceramic matrix fuel cells are an attractive candidate for
