Gonadal factors and reproductive ageing. Human reproduction in late adulthood and old age is affected by many factors. The causes of reproductive ageing are diverse and probably multifactorial. Recent research has aimed to understand the mechanisms and common pathways that contribute to the progressive decline in human reproductive function as a result of genetic and environmental influences. As well as oxidative stress, protease-antiprotease imbalance, inflammatory mediators, and growth factor dysregulation, hormonal factors such as gonadotropins, sex steroid hormones, adrenal and pituitary hormones have been implicated in the development of decreased reproductive capacity in elderly individuals. However, there is still no adequate evidence that explains the decline in the ability of the ovaries to produce large numbers of oocytes, or to increase the number of effective antral follicles, and the reduced capability of the testis to produce spermatozoa in ageing. If the situation were as simple as a simple reduction in the quantity of gonadal hormones, one would not expect to find an association between reproductive disorders and ageing. Hormonal disorders are quite common in old age and it is likely that altered hormonal regulation in response to chronic stress, age-related physiological and lifestyle changes, environmental factors, as well as psychosocial factors could also contribute to reproductive ageing and health disorders.Brisbane Transit and Civil Defence Control Center The Brisbane Transit and Civil Defence Control Center (COC) (originally known as the Brisbane Control Centre) is a post-disaster command post in charge of the emergency management of the Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, region. The facility sits within the old Post Office Building in Red Hill. History The decision to establish a centralised regional control facility was taken at a meeting of the St George Transport Council on 19 October 1970, with NSW Government approval on 6 November. The facility was officially opened on 28 February 1975. The building was built on the site of the demolished disused Red Hill railway station and was designed by the firm of Hadley, Weston & Cooke. Construction cost was £2.65 million. The building has been extended and modified over the years, and in 1988 the first floor was converted into a canteen for depot workers. On 27 February 1992, the centre was renamed "Brisbane Transit and Civil Defence Control Centre".
