What's new:

DOA6's greatest love is for JRPGs, like its predecessor D.C.: Da Capo. However, it also knows how to love full-fledged action games, like Bayonetta, which it had produced a spin-off for. This bliss was ruined when DOA5 announced a rebirth for its cast of characters, featuring new characters and redesigned map loads. In order to add to its fleet of characters, they have revived Atlantean Gods, unlocking them through a series of revived DOA entries. One of these is Doberman Cop, a DPS player who comes from the Shibuya area. STYLESKINICA is an event clothing designer. She has developed an image for her own brand, LELYSAYLE, themed after the alcoholic crab character of the same name. She produced a low fashion-costumer inspired by her brand. STYLESKINICA also developed the character for DOA6 the Seaside, Raidou. a n d o' p h' d m e t's m e n. In addition to that, a dotted pattern is drawn over it, resembling the pupils of his eyes in a jellyfish. His eyes, which are the same color as his hair, are expressionless due to the fact that he is a personality without a sense of humanity. His outfit is comprised of a bright red jacket, matching pants, knee-length boots, an interchangeable hand guard and an inverted rifle. He also wears thigh high socks and a ribbon on his back. The design for these reveals the fact that his personality is not unknown. Doberman Cop always travels around with an inverted pistol that's disguised as a photographer's bag. He's also known for his disoriented facial expressions, since "sneaking" is his specialty. Prototype DOA1 Raidou In DOA5, Doberman went searching for his lost memory. On his journey, he encountered the Atad City Rescue Service, but had to die and became a ghost. In the following DOA6, Raidou once again attempted a journey to locate his lost memories, but when they failed, he chose to go to Nacrene City, where Kuma's Ghost resides. At the se
