There are quite a few lightweight armor sites out there (Mostly out of Germany) and very few with any reputation in the industry (One I can think of is www.xarmor.net and that thing is huge...). Also, people generally don't design armor specific for someone else's idea. Which is why you have two different sites telling you to design your armor differently. Ive looked through your site and its mostly very simple designs... Originally posted by ASID:Ive looked through your site and its mostly very simple designs... Not yet. After I found the armor I liked, I figured I'd build it up. I should've started that project a while ago. What do you suggest I use for the body? Wood or armorcloth? I know you wouldn't suggest aluminum. When is better than right now?
