Category:Windows security softwareFractionation and sequence analysis of somatic cell hybrid DNA sequences. We have evaluated a number of techniques for isolation and sequencing of human DNA sequences contained in the genome of somatic cell hybrids. A panel of somatic cell hybrids has been constructed from the fusion of human X mouse female cells, each of which was distinguished by the use of a selectable marker. Contigs were constructed for each of these hybrids at the minisatellite level by virtue of the presence of the selectable markers. In each case the size and order of the array of minisatellites contained in the contigs was established. The position of minisatellites were determined by hybridization of restriction enzyme fragments to the
